What We Collect and Who We Share With

Website Visitors

We may use cookies (a small text file placed on your computer to identify your computer and browser) and/or Web beacons (a file placed on a website that monitors usage) to improve the experience of our site. You can reset your Web browser to refuse all cookies or to indicate when a cookie is being sent.

Our website may have forms that you can fill out to receive more information from us. If you choose to complete the forms, we will receive the information you provide (such as your name, username, and email address) and will use it to communicate with you about Reduct. At any time, you can unsubscribe from emails directly via a link at the bottom of the email or by emailing us.

Sometimes, a third-party service provider, like Calendly, is available or integrated with the website to enhance your use of the website. In such cases, your use of these services will be governed by their privacy policies and terms of service, and we cannot make a guarantee about what information they gather from use of their services.

In order to understand how customers’ and visitors’ interact with our site and to improve those experiences, we use analytics, such as server usage logs and basic usage analytics (currently we use Google Analytics).

Our platform is collaborative. To facilitate collaboration and provide greater visibility, your profile photo (provided by Gravatar or Google Sign-In, but not stored by us) and name may be visible to other users on the platform.

In order to upload your video to our platform, you may use a third party cloud storage provider, such as Google Drive, Dropbox, or Box. This relationship is directly between you and the provider. We contract with third-party service providers to host our servers and databases, including videos and transcripts (currently, we use Google Cloud Platform) and to provide other services to you. We also contract with transcriptionists to convert the audio portion of the videos you submit to text. We have a policy to require our transcriptionists to sign agreements that require them not to disclose our users’ data except to provide the services.

We use a third party for credit card processing. Currently, we use Stripe. In order to process your payment, Stripe will collect various data. You can see their policies here and their security practices here. We do not store any credit card numbers, only tokens and other items needed to coordinate with and allow our payment processors to process payments.
